

JOYCELYN PETTUS

PARTNERSHIPS FOR SUCCESS DIRECTOR

Joycelyn Pettus received a bachelor's degree in Criminal Justice from the University of Arkansas at Little Rock. She currently serves the State of Arkansas as the Partnerships for Success Director, an enrichment program designed to address one of the nation's top substance abuse priorities – underage drinking, ages 9-20.

An advocate for community involvement, she plays an integral part in statewide prevention services through the Regional Prevention Representatives. Her professional interests focus on implementing substance abuse prevention services for all ages, gender, ethnic groups, as well as many other demographics. Trained as a Trainer in several evidence-based curriculums, Joycelyn is studying to become a Certified Prevention Specialist.

When she's not at work, Joycelyn enjoys spending time with her family, listening to music, and watching all things Gordon Ramsay, Matlock or Sanford and Son.
